What is a smart home?

A smart home is a system of home devices capable of performing actions and solving certain everyday tasks without human intervention. All electrical appliances in the building are functionally interconnected, which can be controlled centrally - from the display panel. Devices can be connected to a computer network, which allows you to control them using a PC and provide remote access to them via the Internet.

The main functions of a smart home

- Reliable and easy-to-use security and video surveillance system;
- Automatic centralized lighting correction depending on the time of day and the movement of people around the room
- Household cares, which usually fall on the shoulders of a person, in a smart house are coordinated with all its systems and are performed in the easiest and most efficient way with the help of modern equipment. This, for example, can be watering the garden or covering it with mulch, opening the garage door, opening the windows, opening the door into the yard
- Remote control of household appliances through an application on a smartphone. That is, you can do everything without reaching the house
